

DARE

Two Versions. One Platform.

Choose the level of validation your agency needs. DARE now gives agencies two distinct ways to evaluate RSA-911 data within a single platform:

DARE Federal

RSA-aligned validation with the full power of DARE

DARE Federal aligns its validation results with the federal RSA edit checker, allowing agencies to focus specifically on the errors that may affect federal submission.

Unlike a basic error checker, DARE transforms federal edit-check results into organized, actionable information. Agencies can review errors by individual, counselor, office, region, supervisor, reporting element, or edit check, making it easier to identify responsibility, prioritize corrections, and understand where errors are concentrated.

DARE Complete

Go beyond submission readiness to improve overall data quality

DARE Complete includes the federally aligned edit checks available in DARE Federal and applies additional quality checks designed to identify potential concerns that may not be recognized as federal errors.

These additional checks can help agencies uncover incomplete information, inconsistencies, unusual data relationships, and other potential quality concerns before they affect reporting, analysis, or program decision-making.

DARE Federal helps agencies:	DARE Complete helps agencies:
Focus only on federally recognized RSA-911 errors.	Identify potential data-quality issues not caught by the federal checker.
Organize errors by staff member, office, region, element, or edit check.	Review inconsistencies that may still pass federal validation.
Quickly identify patterns and concentrations of errors.	Strengthen the accuracy and completeness of RSA-911 data.
Provide counselors and supervisors with targeted information.	Detect recurring issues that may point to training, configuration, or workflow concerns.
Export detailed results for correction and follow-up.	Improve confidence in the data used for reporting and decision-making.
Review data throughout the reporting period rather than waiting until submission.	Move beyond compliance toward continuous data-quality improvement.
Give leadership greater visibility into submission readiness.	Passing federal validation is important, but also...
The federal checker identifies the errors. DARE helps your agency act on them.	Understanding the quality of the data behind the submission is even more valuable.

Visit www.libera.com to find out more

© 2026 Libera, Inc.